Prepare for Big Crowd At Model Plane Contest

Plans were completed today to accommodate between five and ten thousand spectators at the regional model airplane contest to be held at Marion airport tomorrow.

Builders from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Kentucky are expected to enter the 8-hour competitive event, according to R. D. Blank, contest director.

Awards valued at more than $1,000 include trophies, cash awards, engines and other model supplies. The first flight of planes will be held at 9 a. m.

No admission charge will be made to spectators. Refreshment stands will be on the grounds for contestants and those spectators desiring to spend the entire day at the field. C. J. Roberts and his committee will supervise the parking of automobiles and will assist the state highway patrol and the sheriff's office in handling traffic.

Sponsors of Event

The meet which is sponsored jointly by the Marion Prop Busters and the Y's Men's Service club will utilize the entire airport facilities and will necessitate the closing of the field for that day. A. A. Freeman, manager of the Municipal field, which is located one mile west of the Kenton pike, is cooperating in the staging of the affair, and this past week has mailed over 150 notices to Ohio ports informing them that the airfield will be closed to all normal traffic Sept. 14.

Due to the fact that many contestants will have driven one to two hundred miles to be on hand, the scheduled events will be run off rain or shine. Competition will be held in 12 classes divided among free flight gas engine planes, rubber powered craft—both cabin and stick, towline and hand launched gliders, and control line gas engine stunt models. Timing and judging will be done by members of the Y's Men and Prop Busters club with two public address systems in operation to acquaint contestants and spectators with the progress of the various events.

Expect New Records

If conditions are favorable, record flights should be made, and numerous planes will undoubtedly be carried completely out of sight. These models represent a lot of time and money to their owners, who value them highly. R. S. Kraner, general chairman for the contests requests that all planes found be returned to the Monarch Printing Supply Co., located at 251 West Center street. Inasmuch as each plane carries the name and address of its builder, arrangements can then be made to return the models to their owners.

Present plans are to make the Marion Model Aircraft meet a recognized annual affair. Mr. Blank states that next year it is hoped to be able to raise the prize valuation above even its present figure but that such action will be entirely dependent upon the enthusiasm evidenced by both contestants and spectators at the airport tomorrow.

LEWIS ACTION BARS AFL'S USE OF NLRB

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 13—John L. Lewis put the AFL in the same status of non-compliance with the Taft-Hartley act as the CIO today, and more than 14,000,000 workers were deprived of use of the national labor relations board at least for the time being.

Lewis, alone among the 15-man AFL executive council members, held out in opposition to the principle of signing an affidavit that he is not a member of the Communist party. The United Mine Workers, which he heads, has barred Communists from membership since 1927.

Action of the shaggy-haired miners' leader, in the teeth of the desire of his colleagues to sign the affidavit so the AFL's 105 unions could have access to the machinery of the NLRB, forced the executive council to announce it could not comply. All officers have to sign or no AFL unions can use the board, under a ruling of NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham.

The AFL has 7,500,000 members. The CIO recently claimed 6,800,000 words in its 49 industrial unions. CIO vice presidents, meeting in Pittsburgh a week ago, declined to comply immediately, and put off a decision until the CIO convention in Boston, beginning Oct. 13.

EXPANSION OF POWER VOTED BY RIVER COURT

Judges Act After Protest by Marion, Wyandot County Groups.

Congressman Frederick C. Smith of Marion and Common Pleas Judge Paul D. Smith of Marion county and Judge Russell R. Kerr and Prosecutor Russell C. Price of Wyandot county figured prominently yesterday in the Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy District hearing in the state office building at Columbus.

The hearing was conducted before the conservancy district court comprising common pleas judges of the district's 17 counties to determine whether or not the district charter would be broadened to include additional powers including water conservation and sewage control.

These powers were incorporated into the charter by virtue of the court's vote 12 to 5 affirmatively. Among the five judges to cast dissenting votes were Judge Smith and Judge Kear. Others opposing the broadening of the charter were Judges Ralph Sugrue, Seneca county, H. M. Rannking, Fayette, and A. L. Chatfield of Vinton.

Delegation Attends

The hearing was marked by the presence of a delegation of more than 150 Marion and Wyandot county farmers bearing a petition signed by upwards of 500 area landholders opposing a proposed plan advanced under an original federal works program in this area for the creation of a huge reservoir embracing sections of northern Marion and southern Wyandot counties.

Wyandot county prosecutor Russell Price who represented the delegation presented the petition to the court. Petitioners were two Wyandot county landowners, David H. Sears and Ida L. Hale.

The petition in effect contended that the conservancy district was impractical because it embraced two watersheds, those of the Scioto and Sandusky rivers, and further that plans for construction of the Summit Lake reservoir, the name given to the original project scheduled for consideration as far back as a decade ago, were impractical and would cost too much.

The court took the petition under advisement.

Concerning the possibilities of construction of such a reservoir as the Summit Lake project, E. W. Dillon, conservancy district counsel stated he thought it unlikely that such a reservoir in this area would ever be built. Dillon further stated that he personally felt that the reservoir was not feasible. He said however that if such a plan were formally adopted, landowners affected would be given ample time to enter objections.

Smith Files Brief

Congressman Smith appeared before the court to ask permission to file a brief opposing the use of any Federal grants of money in connection with projects in the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district. The court granted his request.

Elaborating on his objection to use of Federal funds on conservancy district projects Congressman Smith said today:

"The federal government hasn't a thin dime to spend on projects of this kind. As a representative in congress, it is my responsibility to maintain the integrity and solvency of the United States treasury. This, as everyone ought to know, is now in jeopardy."

"If bankruptcy overtakes the nation," the congressman continued, "it will make very little difference to people concerned with this particular project (The Summit Lake project) for we shall all be reduced to poverty under a despotic government.

"I must remain consistent in my opposition to unconscionable spending as all know I have continuously opposed all spending of this nature," Congressman Smith concluded.

DIM OUTLOOK SEEN BY MANY

Predictions of Disaster Fly as Cost of Living Nears Record Level.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 — The principal food items on the housewife's shopping list were near the all-time peak reached after the First World War today and gloomy predictions came from some quarters on the outlook.

Butter, hogs, wheat, corn, oats and lard dropped on the nation's primary markets yesterday, but the trend was checked in most of these commodities today.

Eggs were $1 a dozen in some cities, choice steaks were $1 a pound and higher and butter was near or above $1 a pound in some places.

Paul Porter, last federal price chief under OPA said in an interview at Atlanta, Ga., that the nation would be lucky if it escaped a "bust." He said there wasn't much the congress could do about the price situation at this "late" date.

In Minneapolis, John H. MacMillan Jr., president of Cargill, Inc., one of the nation's largest grain merchandising firms, said the overall production of wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye and grain sorghum in the United States was expected to be 19,000,000 long tons below the amounts produced last year—a figure greater than the country's total grain exports in 1937.

May Revise Program

MacMillan said government officials should review the crop situation with a view of revising its grain export program.

For the third consecutive Friday, The Associated Press index of 35 wholesale commodities advanced yesterday to 194.35 compared with 191.58 a week before. However, this was slightly lower than the 194.99 reached Thursday. The base year 1926 equals 100.

Walter Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, told a mass meeting in Buffalo, N. Y., last night that he would try and promote a national buyers' strike "to see if we can smash the profiteers." He called for a "fight" to restore price control.

There was organized consumer resistance in many cities and government and other officials expressed their views on the causes of the cost of living and offered suggestions to combat the high prices.

Bid Against Selves

Secretary of Commerce Harriman said in Washington that the high level of food prices were due more to Americans bidding against each other than to export shipments.

"The present high prices are due primarily to the fact that this nation is now enjoying an all-time record of prosperity," the commerce secretary said. He added that "it is hardly fair to blame exports for the general high level of food prices which exist today."

"The high cost of living, Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said in Santa Cruz, Calif., may be a prime political issue in next year's national elections. He said prices were high mainly because of the "tremendous domestic consumption of foodstuffs," and his answer to the high cost of living was "eat less, and eat less extravagantly." Taft said he was opposed to a return of government price controls."

But in New York, a spokesman for the New York League of Women Shoppers said: "We feel we must fight now for a return to price controls and rationing."

New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer said that "in view of the terrific emergency" he had name a committee to investigate rising prices relating to the school lunch program, care of city hospital patients and relief recipients.

Base Year Is 1926

After yesterday's declines, the first in eight days, The Associated Press average of 35 wholesale commodities dropped to 194.35 from 194.99 on Thursday. The base year 1926 equals 100.

In yesterday's market in Chicago butter dropped ¼ to 2½ cents pound, with best grades at 83 to 85 cents, while in New York butter was quoted a cent lower but there were no dealings because of "consumer resistance."

In Chicago, eggs dropped the 2 cent daily limit, October closing at 56 cents. There were 322 cars of eggs and 14 cars of butter offered for future delivery with no buyers. The totals were 76,800 pounds of butter and 5,790,000 dozen eggs.

The decline in grains, both cash and for future delivery,

TROPICAL HURRICANE MOVES TOWARD COAST

Shift in Course May Keep It in Atlantic.

By The Associated Press

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 13 — A tropical hurricane with winds above 140 miles an hour was located today approximately 225 miles due north of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and within 1,000 miles of Miami, but there was a possibility that a slight northward curve might have developed during the night.

The hurricane, which has traveled more than 1,000 miles in the last 60 hours and moved along at a fast clip of 20 miles an hour, was given in the last advisory at 5 a. m. as continuing a west northwest to northwest movement, toward the North American continent.

Grady Norton, chief forecaster of the Miami hurricane office of the U. S. weather bureau, said later there was a "possibility of a very slight—hardly perceptible thus far—northward tendency, but I wouldn't want to say anything definite until we get more fixes from Army and Navy observation planes."

A northward movement would keep the hurricane in the Atlantic.

OFFICIALS DRAW UP RULES FOR GAS USE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 13 — Prospective shortages of natural gas on the coldest days of the coming winter brought officials of more than a score of distributors of the fuel here today to help the state utilities commission work out rules of the game.

A hearing to consider "uniform rules for curtailment" of natural gas service to heating appliances—furnaces and conversions, and all other space heating devices using natural gas—was set for 10 a. m., with most of the 28 major companies expected to be represented.

The commission order for the hearing cited "confusion and uncertainty" which it traced to varying individual efforts of the companies to meet last winter's crises. Some companies refused then to make any new connections for heating purposes, some granted new service in so-called hardship cases and to new homes, while others were even more liberal.

Ohio Fuel Gas Co. officials, whose firm is one of the three biggest in the state, planned to recommended a complete freeze on all new installations. The attitude of the other two, East Ohio Gas Co. of Cleveland and the Cincinnati Gas and Electric Co., was not known in advance of the hearing.

However, officials of the three conferred with members of the utilities commission Wednesday, the day before the PUCO order was made public.

PARLEY CALLED BY MARSHALL

Secretary Confers with Aides on Stand U. S. Will Take at UN Assembly.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Secretary of State George C. Marshall summoned his 10-member UN delegation for a series of conferences here today to lay down the policy the United States will pursue on the Balkans, Palestine, the veto and other issues in the United Nations assembly meeting to start Tuesday.

Marshall, who arrived by train from Washington last night, scheduled his first conference for 9:30 a. m., when he was to assign delegates formally to various assembly committees.

An American spokesman said that because of so many major issues, Marshall would not attempt to carry the load alone on the 55-nation political committee but would assign other delegates to specify issues as they came before specific issues as they came before.

The importance with which the U. S. views the coming assembly session at Flushing Meadow park was seen in the fact that Marshall came here to direct personally the American strategy.

Marshall is to be the second among the 55 chief delegates to speak in the assembly's general debate. He will follow Mexico's representative to lay down basic U. S. policy next Wednesday.

But there was a possibility that he might give some hint before then of the U. S. stand in the assembly on the explosive Balkan and Palestine issues. Should he do so, most observers expected it to come tomorrow when he addresses a luncheon session of the American association for the United Nations.

Republicans Turn Baby Sitters

By The Associated Press

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 13—Harold A. Ziss said today that the Republican party's baby-sitting was a howling success.

Ziss' office, the city Republican headquarters, was crawling with babies. Some cooed happily. The rest wailed.

Evansville Republicans announced a few days ago that mothers should bring their babies to headquarters while they walk four blocks down the street to register for the Nov. 4 municipal election.

Fifteen babies were brought in yesterday.

"It sure is nice having these babies around," Ziss said. "Sure they cry a little. But it doesn't bother me."

He said he didn't actually do any baby-sitting himself. His staff of eight or 10 clerical workers—all women—would alternate the babies playing "this little piggy went to town" and rocking them when they cry.

"So far we haven't had to change diapers but were prepared," Ziss said.

He said the Republicans inaugurated the baby-sittin' service to get out a nearly vote in an effort to reelect Mayor Munson Reichert. Reichert was indicted some time ago by a grand jury on charges growing out of an investigation of alleged primary election irregularities.

"If the service pleases mothers," Ziss said, 'we'll expand our staff on election day and send sitters to stay with the babies in their own homes while the parents vote.'

He said the sitting service would continue through Oct. 6, the last day for registration.

Baby sitting on election day isn't a new thing for Evansville," Ziss said. The party did it in 1946.

"And the Republicans did all right in Evansville that year," he added.

City firemen report three small fires occuring in Marion Thursday afternoon and night.

Short circuit in wiring of an auto owned by Edward Solomon of 814 Woodrow avenue resulted in approximately $5 loss. The blaze occurred in front of 122 South Main street at about 5 p. m.

Fire, causing approximately $25 loss, resulted when a lighted cigaret was thrown on front seat of a car owned by M. Norrenne Bentz of 309 Chicago avenue. It was parked in front of the Bentz home. Firemen answered the call at 7:27 p. m.

Last night at 9:35 the department was called to the Ritz Grill at 154 South Main street when grease caught fire in the kitchen. It was extinguished before firemen arrived.

RAILROAD STRIKERS TO RETURN TO WORK

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 13—About 1,800 operating employes of the Union railroad, on strike the past eight days in a demand for a 50 cents hourly wage raise and other benefits, agreed to return to their jobs today.

The return also would end the idleness of 17,500 steel workers, employes at four Pittsburgh district plants of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, served by the inter-plant railroad. Both Carnegie-Illinois and Union railroad, are subsidiaries of U. S. Steel corporation.

A joint statement issued last night by railroad officials and negotiators of the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers and Railway Trainmen said the workers were to receive an immediate 15 cents-an-hour pay raise plus any additional increase which might be agreed upon in "national wage determinations."

Wage committees of the big five railroad brotherhoods will meet Sept. 18 to formulate a general wage demand for all railroad operating groups.

The strike, unauthorized by the national brotherhoods, began Sept. 5.

4th District Election Barred to New Voters

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 13—A formal opinion of Atty. Gen. Hugh S. Jenkins today barred new registrations of electors in the Fourth congressional district for the Oct. 7 primary and Nov. 4 special election to select a successor to former Rep. Robert F. Jones.

Jenkins ruled the last day for registration was Sept. 9.

Election rules prohibiting registration less than 10 days after a primary or general election or within 28 day prior to either were the basis for the opinion. The 10-day restriction prevents unregistered voters from signing for the general election, Jenkins held.

spite $1-a-Pound Butter, One n Is Happy—Margarine King

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

ASHINGTON, Sept. 13—There were the headlines about ..nd butter, buyers' strikes, grocers' laments, aroused house-..rried politicians and threats of a new OPA. They indi-..me that in all America there was only one happy man left.

Barriers Crumple

... dispatching aid to the hos-pital chiefs. He said most of the artificial legal barriers against margarine seem to be crumpling under the impact of $1 butter. No wonder, Truitt chortled.

He added (and I'm quoting him, dairy industry) that margarine is more nourishing than most butter, more sanitary, more uniform in quality, and certainly today a far better buy. What makes him happiest of all is the fact that margarine, the one food that has gone down in price since the war, also is the only food that gets no federal subsidies or price supports.

It is geared directly to the world peace for edible oils," he said. "The price of these oils has gone up in the last few days but there is a bumper crop of soybeans in the making and if there are no early frosts, well . . ."

No Advance

There'll be little or no advance in margarine prices, he meant. Truitt then reeled off some facts about margarine:

The word comes from the Greek, meaning pearl-like. All of today's margarine contains a hefty slug of vitamin A. Almost all margarine is made either from cottonseed or soybean oil. The finished product has a natural yellow color.

The manufacturers must bleach this out to comply with the law and then buy artificial color for the housewife to mix in again. This long has seemed silly to Truitt and Co., as have the many special taxes levied against margarine but their fight to have the laws changed so far has been unavailing.

Not that this matters much now. So long as butter can be eaten only by the rich, the demand for margarine will zoom. It tastes better anyhow, said Truitt. And if any creamery mogula cares to defend dollar butter, I shall be delighted to interview him.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M.D.

Too Much Weight

There are far too many men and women who travel through life with excess baggage in the form of fat. Their obesity is not only detrimental to appearance but is also a very real health hazard and this is true even when the obesity is mild, for the person who is even moderately overweight is likely to be only moderately healthy.

This is particularly true of those over forty years of age. Careful study has shown that obese people in this age group have a higher death rate than those who keep their figures trim. The contrast is so marked that it has been stated that with every pound of excess weight in persons forty to fifty years of age, the mortality rate increases 1 per cent.

And this is no wonder when you consider the long list of ills which seem to lie in wait for the man or woman who is too fat. High blood pressure, diabetes, gallbladder disease, and arthritis all seem to have an especial affinity for overweight individuals. They also may have less resistance to infection, and it is a well established fact that heavy people do not stand operations as well as do those of normal weight.

The first thing a person wants to know is whether he looks "fat." It does not do to compare the weight with that given in a standard table which shows the average weight for persons of various heights and ages. The body build or physical makeup must be taken into consideration. Hence, to find out if you are overweight and how much you ought to lose, the best thing to do is to consult your doctor.

In pracically all cases, people are overweight because they eat too much. If more food is taken in than is needed to supply the energy for everyday life, some of the excess will be stored in the form of fat in the body tissues.

It is true that in some few cases there may be a lack of secretion from certain of the glands in the body, particularly the thyroid gland in the neck or the pituitary gland at the base of the brain. Study by a physician will reveal whether or not any such condition is present, and, if so, treatment with glandular extract can be started.

There are certain things which contribute to overweight. For example, parents may put too much emphasis on eating, and the child carries this over into adult life.

Overweight in children is frequently the result of the parents' attitude toward the child, indulgence on the part of parents in the failure to limit appetites is responsible for more than nine out of every ten cases of overweight in children.

Now and then, a mother may even train her child to overeat as the result of her desire to act as a good mother. Mothers may be over anxious about the child's health, and, in order to make him strong and healthy, she encourages the eating of larger quantities of food than are necessary.

Thus in correcting the overweight in a child, it is of importance first of all to overcome these wrong attitudes on the part of parents.

A full stomach often creates a comfortable feeling. Overeating also may give a temporary feeling of security and bring relief from mental or emotional tension.

Bedridden patients whose activities are restricted often overindulge in foods, particularly sweets.

In practically all instances, weight loss can be brought about only by proper regulation of the diet. Of course, the diet should be kept well-balanced at all times and contain the necessary proteins, vitamins and minerals.

Certain drugs such as amphetamine may be helpful in curbing the appetite, but of course these should be taken only under the direction of a physician.

Fads in dieting should be avoided. The physician will outline the kind of diet to be found most satisfactory.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. T. C.: Will you please tell me something about vitamins in regard to gray hair?

Answer: There is no good evidence that any vitamin deficiency is responsible for gray hair. The exact cause for early graying of the hair is not known.

for what's ahead

CONSIDER, for a moment, just what is ahead when you put your name down for one of these Buicks.

There are weeks and months and years of fun in the steplively lift of the big Fireball straight-eight that purrs beneath this bonnet.

There's smooth and level going wherever your paths may lead, over boulevards level as a ballroom floor or bad roads tamed by your easy-going coil springs — on all four wheels.

There's plenty of good company in a car big enough to take the crowd, and to give elbow room for six on its soft, deep, three-person seats.

There's long life and durability in a stout chassis and rugged under-pinning built big and brawny—there's light handling for the lady of the household and there's enough size to satisfy the most masterful masculinity.

There's fun and satisfaction and pride from the moment one's yours through many a long year; now see how the looks of this beauty fit with all that.

Plainly, no car on the roads today so clearly bears the mark of tomorrow in its styling.

Plainly, no other car is so enduringly smart in the sleekness of its lines, the sweep of its follow-through fenders, the broad-beamed, meant-for-business garb this one wears so proudly.

Whatever the future brings, there's no surer way to be certain you'll be traveling in the newest of the new than to put your money on Buick.

Do that—and you make sure of your future. All that's required is a firm order placed now, with or without a car to trade.

Politics as Usual

IN looking at Europe, much depends on the point of view. Isolationists, for example, murmur that they can't see why the United States should be bothered, but that's because they are too far away.

Interventionists, on the other hand, have their twitching noses pressed against the glass, they are so close, but they lack perspective. They have no sympathy for the Marshall plan, for instance, which is still another way of looking at Europe—a moderate way.

Then there are those who see the need for doing something to help Europeans but warn that the United States might hurt itself by trying too hard. They want to do everything they can, but don't believe they can do much.

Another group, feeling that something must be done, lacks a sense of misgiving about the consequences of trying to do something but possesses strong misgivings about the consequences of not trying. They warn that the cost of trying to avert it by helping Europe—and there is, of course, much to be said for that point of view.

But there is another way of looking at Europe that should be understood, too—the way the Truman administration is looking at it.

Mr. Truman and his advisers have one interest that surpasses all others—success in the 1948 election. Consequently, when they look at Europe they must think not only of what is good for Europe but of what is good for them. There is nothing wrong about this; it is the usual thing in politics.

But because politics as usual is being dealt with, it must be remembered that export of huge stores of food and materials to Europe is, aside from European need, an ideal way to keep U. S. employment and price levels high. That is the way the Truman administration wants them, regardless of what its spokesmen say about high prices. If employment and prices are still high a year from now, Mr. Truman and his party will have their best possible chance to win the 1948 election.

The European crisis, if handled skilfully, can be as valuable a political asset as WPA, which relieved human and political misery for many years in this country. The Truman administration will not overlook the possibility of playing the same winning combination.

Reviving the Ruhr

WITH the United States sharing equal responsibility with Britain in administering the Ruhr, coal production in this vital area may move toward a level which is essential for Europe's recovery. Until now the Ruhr has been, in Robert Moses' words, an international debating society, with British supervision, American advice, French protests and cynical, half-hearted effort on the part of the Germans.

The mines are well equipped and far from exhausted. All that is needed is the incentive to step up production. Daily output of 400,000 tons instead of the present 224,000 would be lifeblood in Europe's veins. Before the war the Ruhr was the heart of western Europe's industry and commerce. Italy relied on Ruhr coal and in exchange sent Germany millions of tons of food annually. Now Germany relies on us for food and Italy relies on us for coal.

French fears that a revived Ruhr will mean renassent German militarism will have to be allayed by efficient international control of the district. British hopes for a socialized Ruhr will have to be held in abeyance until the Germans themselves are able to decide how the mines will be operated. Russian protests that the Potsdam pact is being violated will have to be taken at the face value of all Russian protests, which is about the same as the face value of the Romanian lei. A stabilized western Europe just isn't part of Russia's plans.

Our contribution to western Europe's recovery is substantial enough to warrant a dominant role in mapping the course of that recovery.

Weeding Out War-Wearies

NEW YORK state's special joint legislative committee on motor vehicle problems recommends compulsory inspection of vehicles, following the line of New Jersey, which had it since before the war.

It is a plan which other states also are considering. The idea certainly has merit, in view of the number of war-weary automobiles, with sputtering engines and jagged fenders or no fenders at all, on the highways today. Compulsory inspection has been highly successful in New Jersey, where even before the war a surprising number of vehicles went to the garage to have brakes adjusted, wheels aligned or headlights focused.

While the human factor is more often the cause of accidents, mechanical deficiencies contribute their share. What is really needed is an effective driver licensing plan plus compulsory inspections once or twice a year. That would really whittle down the automobile's toll.

Soviet Ideological Indigestion

By RAYMOND MOLEY

Politburo Finds Heresy in High Places.

THOSE who greatly fear the Soviet conceive of it as governed by an iron ideology—fixed, generally accepted and likely to continue indefinitely into the future. If this were true, the outlook would indeed be dark, and a war of ideology would be inevitable. There is no doubt that the leaders of Russia wish it were true and that they are trying to make it true. But not only the lessons of history, but their own experiences in the last 30 years have proved the futility of trying to make men's minds respond to a single master switch.

The Soviet Union has only a short history, but already there is great disagreement about who should tell it and what should be told. A year or so ago, I entered a Communist bookstore in Portland, Ore., and asked for Trotsky's "History of the Russian Revolution." A surly and suspicious negative was the answer. The dealer would have as soon loosed a basket of rattlesnakes on his shelves as that heretical treatise.

Books Changed

For a while after Trotsky was ousted from power, a series of textbooks on Russian history by Mikhail Pokrovsky was used in Soviet schools. But in the 30's, Comrades Stalin and Andrei Zhdanov decided that Pokrovsky's views of history were heretical. And so a joint party-government resolution was adopted, condemning the Pokrovsky book and calling for a new text on Soviet history. The result was the "Short Course of the History of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union." This, incidentally, was procurable in the Portland bookstore to which reference is made above.

And then, after the great purge, all cultural matters were watched over by Georgy Fedorovich Aleksandrov, who was head of the agitation and propaganda section of the party. All went well, until poor Georgy decided to spread his bumbling philosophical learning in a book. This book was "History of Western European Philosophy." At first, it was praised by Soviet pundits and was circulated widely. It received a Stalin prize of 100,000 rubles.

And then Politburo member Andrei Zhdanov summoned a couple of professors and other so-called intellectuals to consider the Aleksandrov opus. Zhdanov denounced the book. Thereupon, Alexsandrov repudiated his brainchild, and all the savants who had praised the book publicly ate their words. Better a living liar, perhaps they thought, than a dead philosopher.

"Unsafe Condition"

The official crime of Aleksandrov was that in reading western philosophers he became infected with some of their ideas. He developed an occupational disease for which the elaborate Soviet health measures provide only surgery.

All this sounds silly to a westerner, but it is no laughing matter in Russia. The whole show is performing over a logical volcano. Marx pointed out that inexorable and impersonal laws determine history. But Politburo power must, if it is to survive, teach that specific persons determine history. Zhdanov said: "There is an unsafe condition on our theoretical front." In this statement Zhdanov seems to have hit the theoretical nail on the head.

Daily Bible Thought

There is a clarity of judgment in the mind of a spiritually minded unselfish person, and it enables such persons to avoid sorry deeds, because they have kindly unselfish thoughts.—I Cor. 2:15: "Me that is spiritual judgeth all things, and he himself is judged by no man."

They Might Try Their Own Prescription

Radio Moscow advocates establishment of another political party in the U. S., contending that the present two-party system has become "non-democratic."

On the contrary, I had thought, if anything, it has become almost "non-Republican."

Wall Street, declares the Soviet radio, now has "full control of the entire civic and political life of the United States," including everything, one gathers, but the editorial policy of the New Republic.

Incidentally, Russian interest in establishing another national political party in this country will strike many as strange in view of the fact that we already have twice as many as they.

Yes sir, the U.S.S.R. has the one-party system, . . . and Joe Stalin is that party.

Woes of Book Publishers

They Face Rising Costs, Declining Profits.

BOOK publishers have suddenly awakened to the fact they're going into the red, according to Bennett Cerf in the Saturday Review of Literature. Five of every six books nowadays lose money and the sixth often would be a loser, too, except for subsidiary rights.

Cerf says Simon & Schuster recently totted up income and outgo on one of its best sellers which is well past the 100,000 mark and found that its net profit was exactly $700. This is an exceptional case, but a publisher must sell 10,000 copies of the average novel these days to break even, whereas the break-even mark used to be between 2,500 and 4,000. Only the most successful novels have 10,000 sales.

Some publishers have increased the price of novels to $3.50 but except in the case of best sellers, sales have been affected.

Cerf recalls the anecdote of a midwestern grain merchant who also was chairman of a state textbook purchasing board. When the chairman objected to paying $2 for the same book that he had bought three years ago for $1.50, the salesman replied: "This is a bargain we're offering you. Three years ago it took the price of two full bushels of wheat to buy that book. Now you get it for three-quarters of a single bushel."

With buyer resistance developing, now is hardly the time to begin increasing book prices, but Cerf believes hard-pressed publishers can remedy the situation to some extent by introducing new economies. These include eliminating full-page advertisements when single columns will suffice. They can stop publishing trash and stop big advances to authors on the basis of sample chapters, a dubious and often costly practice.

Cerf also believes publishers have a right to cut in on an author's share of motion picture royalties. Producers of stage plays, he points out, usually get 40 per cent of a playwright's picture royalties, but a book publisher usually gets nothing.

Two other sources Cerf says publishers would do well to exploit are reprint editions and book clubs. These, he says, are doing most to increase the number of book buyers. "Some day, maybe," he says, "it will be possible again to publish books at a decent profit, and the fight for subsidiary profits of all kinds will not be a battle for sheer survival. Until that day maybe all of us should make a few allowances."

On Trail of Unlucky Drivers

CALIFORNIA psychologists have been asking motorists what losing their driver's license would mean. This is part of the state's program to weed out the few "unlucky" drivers who cause a majority of traffic accidents.

The American Public Works Association reports that 86 per cent of all persons interviewed under the program since the war have been driving without further mishap. All those interviewed had been repeatedly involved in accidents.

Interviews start with an informal, friendly discussion. Often interviewers discover that drivers get in accidents because of emotional instability—they may have severe financial or marital worries, for example, and release their anxieties through reckless driving.

Such cases are referred to psychiatrists for treatment, or for medical decision as to whether or not their licenses should be revoked. Others get off with a stiff warning. Getting the dangerous driver to think hard about what it would mean to him if his license were revoked, often has a decided "curative" effect.

Of the 2,202 drivers interviewed during a recent three-month period, 43.7 per cent receiving warnings, 46.2 per cent were put on probation, 7.4 per cent had their driving permits suspended, and 2.7 per cent had them revoked.

California motorists who are repeatedly involved in accidents are classified as "negligent." A new law defines a negligent driver as one who has been convicted of accident liability four or more times in 12 months, six or more times in 24 months, or eight or more times in 36 months. About 45,000 of the 4,451,981 licensed drivers in the state are classified as "negligent."

Australia Plans Antarctic Stations

By The Associated Press

CANBERRA, Australia—Prime Minister Joseph Chifley has announced a decision to establish scientific meteorological stations during the Australian Antarctic expedition in 1947-'48 to carry out a systematic reconnaissance of Australian Antarctic territory over a number of years with a view to establishing a permanent scientific station on the Antarctic continent.

'47 BACK-BREAKER

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Monday, Sept. 13, 1937. Twenty-two Ohioans met violent deaths over the week-end. Death stalked the highways to claim 14 victims while four lives ended under the wheels or in front of trains and four others died of injuries received in other accidents.

Marionites dragged comforts out of mothballs and heavier clothing out of cedar bags in an effort to combat the lowest temperature of the season. The mercury sank to 45 the preceding night after a day made even more dreary by brief showers. High was 75.

Arthur S. Zachman went to Chicago where he was to head the advertising and merchandising department, a new service of the National Association of Retail Grocers.

J. B. Ellis of Mt. Vernon avenue was named chairman of the annual drive to be held by the Marion County chapter of the American Red Cross at a meeting of the board in the Red Cross office.

The following ministers were returned to pastorates here and in the vicinity at the closing session of the annual Ohio Methodist conference at Dayton: Dr. E. T. Waring, Epworth church; Rev. Henry Maag, Prospect Street Methodist; Rev. Stanley W. Wiant, Wesley and Rev. W. H. Kiser, Morral-Asbury charge.

George Sorreles and Fred P. Haas were elected delegates and T. L. Scott and Edwin McGue alternates to the semi-annual convention of the Ohio Typographical conference to be held at Springfield, at a meeting of Marion Typographical Union No. 675 at the Central Labor Union hall.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, Sept. 13, 1927. Lieut. Walter Lee Sherfey, commander of the Harding tomb guard detachment of the 10th Infantry, estimated that since the death of President Harding between 900,000 and 1,000,000 persons had visited the Marion cemetery vault where the president's body lay.

Dr. B. L. George, pastor of Epworth M. E. church for the preceding two years, was reappointed to the pastorate at the West Ohio conference session in Delaware. Dr. J. D. Darling, for seven years pastor at Wesley M. E. church, was assigned to the Camden M. E. church near Eaton, Preble county.

Miss Grace Kline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Kline of Thew avenue, returned to Oxford to take up her second year of studies at Western College for Women.

A party was given for Miss Marjorie Merkel at her home on Uncapher avenue in celebration of her birthday anniversary.

The Altrusa club held its first meeting of the season with Miss Christine Rieck of East Center street.

Too Gol Darned Perfect

By FRANK TRIPP

ALONG with the disappearance of horses and trolleys, the little branch line railroad has become almost as extinct as the paper collar. The truck, bus and auto spelled its doom.

With it went a source of American humor that was unique. Nothing has taken its place and there is a void which has not been filled.

The only traveler talk now comes from airplanes and Pullman smoking rooms. It used to come from stuffy, stove-heated coaches where the common people rode.

There they were packed closely together for quite periods of time, although they traveled only a few miles. They were chummy; got to know each other and to be intimate with train crews and station hands along the route. They could ride with empty pockets and pay next time.

The Tioga division of the Erie ran into the lumber country and soft coal fields of northern Pennsylvania. Its trains seemed to stop at every house and twice at double houses. It didn't quite deserve the reputation which the yarns of its passengers gave it but it did almost. Here are a couple:

Pulling into Blossburg the conductor demanded a ticket from an old man with a long beard.

"You got my ticket," said the passenger.

"I did not," replied the conductor. "Where did you get on?"

"I got on at Pine City."

"I know better than that," the conductor said. "Nobody got on at Pine City but a little boy."

"That's right," said the old man, "I was that little boy."

At Elmira an ambulance met the train and took a mother and new-born babe to the hospital. She hadn't quite made it so the blessed event occurred enroute, by aid of motherly midwives aboard.

The conductor was angry and disgusted. "Why in the world would a woman get on a train in that condition?" he blared so the whole car could hear him.

Way up front a burly lumberman roused from his slumber, took another swig from his pint of clear alcohol and proclaimed:

"Well, maybe when she got on she wasn't."

This one is real because I sat across the aisle and heard it.

A 280 pound woman and her short, shriveled husband had been in town shopping. His arms were so full of bundles that he was almost concealed when he settled down next to the window. When his wife plunked down beside him he was completely blacked out.

The conductor came for the tickets. She said, "He's got 'em." He started to look. Packages fell all over. The woman bawled him out. He searched in vain and her tirade crescendoed, to the amusement of the passengers.

Pretty soon everybody felt sorry for the little man. He was out in the aisle. Packages were all over the seat and on the floor. He was searching from pocket to pocket. She was giving him the works; looked ready to swat him one.

The conductor got sorry for him too and said: "Couldn't be you lost 'em?"

"What do you mean, couldn't be he lost 'em?" the fat lady yelled. "He'd lose his head if it wasn't fastened on him. Couldn't be he lost a little thing like a ticket. The old fool lost a bass drum once."

I used to dread a ride on these little railroads but I'd pay excess fare for just one more trip with the real America that traveled them.

And I'd pay Broadway prices to sit one more night in a ten-cent gallery seat and see Kirke Brown play "The Ten Ton Door." When last I saw it the ten tons teetered, started to fall and was held up one-handed by Kirke, while he embraced the heroine with the other.

Everything is too gol darned perfect nowadays.

Berlin Rubble Makes Ersatz Mountains

By The Associated Press

BERLIN—Berlin, which is built on a sandy plain as flat as a pancake, will have its hills as fast as Germans can pile up the rubbish from its bomb ruins.

In planning the Berlin of the future, park planners have decided that the city can best be cleared by making "mountains" of the debris and then planting them with grass, trees and bushes. The huge Nazi-built anti-aircraft towers scattered throughout Berlin which are being blasted to destroy their war potential will serve as a base for many of the hills.

Underprivileged

By TRUMAN TWILL

Because we once were a child, for a short time, the news about the miniature staircases is hard to forget. They're being sold in big-city toy shops to the parents of kids that otherwise wouldn't see staircases because the kids never been born and reared in apartment houses where up-and-down movement is accomplished with elevators.

This strikes us the same as attempts to keep city children on speaking terms with cows, chickens and pigs. Perhaps that's because we don't belong to the soft-headed school of thought that says city boys and girls are underprivileged. They have it better than their country cousins. It's only their papas' and mamas longing for their own childhood that need to be pitied.

If town moppets must be given miniature staircases because their parents are bothered about an environment of elevators, what's going to be done about giving them some of the other things city boys and girls never will have, such as skinny dips in creeks instead of swimming pools; tin-can shinny instead of supervised play; going barefoot from June to October instead of being shod the year 'round; heavy laced shoes in winter instead of oxfords and overshoes.

Dried corn silk instead of snitched cigarets; peaches stolen off trees instead of grocery-store counters; fishworms picked up in the wake of the plow instead of at a bait store; hickory nuts clubbed out of a tree instead of purchased out of a glass case; cold water from a tin cup out of the well instead of a paper doobinny at the water cooler.

Fish snagged with a handful of primitive equipment instead of an armful of complicated tackle; BB guns, slingshots and bean-shooters instead of iron-clad rules against public nuisances; Mother singing hymns instead of calling hollering double-entendre ballads over the radio; meat, mashed potatoes and gravy instead of lettuce leaves and vitamins;

A patient old horse to slap on the rump for a burst of speed instead of a juggernaut to accelerate on its way to sudden death; pumpkins out of a corn field instead of a can; trees to climb instead of metal frames in playgrounds; "David Copperfield" instead of comic books; the panoply of the heavens by day and night instead of the latest movie;

A bagful of indestructible candy for a nickel instead of a tiny segment of mass-produced candy bar; a dog named Rover of indeterminate ancestry instead of a member of aristocratic known as Finchcliffe of Donny Dew II; free pencils instead of patent pens guaranteed for nine lifetimes—and a lot of other stuff precious to mothers and fathers but which would leave their kids as cold as we'll bet the miniature staircases leave them?

I, too, replied, "I am a messenger of the King and it is my responsibility to carry and deliver the messages of my King." Surprise was written upon his countenance. "But," he objected, "You told me you were a citizen of the United States!" And I answered, "I am. But I am also a messenger of the King of Kings and Lord of Lords —my Saviour, Jesus Christ. His messages are most important for they are Life Eternal." Then it was my privilege to point out to him the way of salvation. How blessed to be a messenger of THE KING! He was but a messenger for an earthly king who will someday pass away. But my KING and His message will never pass away for His Word is eternal! And whosoever will, need but to accept Him as personal Saviour, and eternal life is theirs.

The message of the King is, "now is the day of salvation." Today is the day of salvation—not tomorrow. Christ died for the sinner. When one realizes that he is a sinner, and believes that Christ died for him, salvation is accomplish'd in his heart. In God's sight there are just two classes of people—saved and unsaved; sinner and saint; believer and unbeliever, justified and lost. Therefore if you are not saved, you are lost; if you are not a saint, you are a sinner; if you are not a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ, you are an unbeliever; if you are not justified by His Blood, you are lost.

The Kiwanis club is sponsoring a county-wide mass meeting at the Garfield park pavilion on Saturday night at 8 o'clock, with Mr. LeTourneau as the speaker. E. L. START A GOOD WEEK—IN A GOOD WAY

"Church ain't never hurt anybody," the man said emphatically. "Trouble with the world today is it's spiritually ignorant."

That man condemned the world though he never went to church either! How about you? Do you go to church?

Start a good week in a good way. Go to church and get some knowledge about spiritual truths. Spiritual ignorance is the cause of spiritual decay and death—in yourself, your community, your nation.

Building Expert Advises Against Having Attic of House Completely Enclosed

YOUR HOME TODAY and TOMORROW

by W. Wadsworth Wood

Some Instructions on Road Building

Practically all suburban or country homes have a private road even though it may only lead to the garage. If the road is properly built it will give satisfactory service for years. If not, it may be a source of constant irritation, of real serious damage to your car and an eyesore to boot.

Road-building follows an extremely simple pattern, and there is nothing about it which the average homeowner cannot absorb and execute himself.

In these days of high building costs private roadways do not receive too much attention. In many cases the turf is scalped off the ground a few loads of stone or cinders dumped and spread and a road thus presented. It may look fairly good and be passable, until bad weather has had a chance to work on it. From then on it will deteriorate under normal use.

Solid road building consists of laying out the side-lines, and then excavating the ground to a depth of some nine or ten inches. The roadway must have a slope toward the public street or highway. The excavated area should be raked smooth and thoroughly wetted down with a hose, or allowed to "weather." The next step is to lay a course or layer of heavy stones, broken rock or concrete, from three to four inches deep. These should be tamped or pounded into place, and form what might be called the foundation of the road. On top of this should be spread about three inches of cinders. This layer should be raked, wetted down, and raked again until it shows a fairly smooth surface. Then it should be rolled down hard. On top of this is spread blue-stone, gravel, or other finish, which is known as the "topping" or "road finish." This final layer should be higher in the center than on the sides; or in other words should form a "crown" which will shed water off to the sides.

There are many roadways, constructed simply of cinders or broken stone, which offer good service; but only at the expense of constant dressing. The more a road is raked and dressed, the better it will grow with the years. When large stones are raked out of a road, it will bed better and be smoother, because a large stone will constantly work around and form a pit.

Road work can be done in sections. The homeowner need not undertake a hundred feet of road at once, but can spread the job over a month or more, as his time is available or he can gather his materials.

COLUMBUS HOUSING SHORTAGE PEAK SEEN

By The United Press

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13—A Columbus industrial leader today predicted this city would see more distress and unrest this winter than ever before because of the housing shortage.

Herbert N. Lape Sr., head of a large shoe manufacturing concern and a community chest trustee, said, "this is especially true of the average workers for whom there are little or no available rental units."

He was backed up by City Housing Director Ray Pennell, who estimated that 7,000 families need housing.

"Hundreds of men and women haven't been in a bed for a year. Hundreds or children are sleeping on floors," Pennell said, and predicted that "when winter comes the suffering here will be unthinkable."

Lape charged that realtors and builders have failed to solve the problem.

"Our Columbus builders and realtors have done all within their power, but they have failed to build enough homes because of labor and material shortages. The homes that have been built are beyond the reach of the average worker," he said.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Q.—If an attic were completely enclosed, would any harm result to the construction of the house? There are no ventilating louvres in our attic, and the floor is covered with a 4-inch layer of rock wool insulation. There is a disappearing stairway leading to the attic, but this is usually kept closed. I have been told that excessive heat in summertime is harmful to the rafters, etc.

A—Excessively dry heat will not damage nor destroy lumber, but ventilating louvres are advisable to prevent an accumulation of heat in the attic during the summer. This accumulated heat may eventually penetrate through the insulation and make the rooms below hot and uncomfortable. During the winter months, the lack of ventilation may cause damage to the roof timbers because of the possible accumulation of moisture, which may work its way through the second floor ceilings into the attic, when there is a fair amount of humidity in the air of the house. Ventilating louvres are advisable.

Rusty Water

Q. We have a new artesian well, all new pipes, etc. But still the electric pump must be full of rust because the water turns very yellow when heated. How can we clear things up?

A. If the water seems clear when first drawn but turns rusty-looking on exposure to air or when heated, it contains iron in solution. To clear it up, you will need an iron-removing unit made for the purpose. For the name of the manufacturer, inquire of the Architects Samples Exhibit, 101 Park Avenue, New York 17. (A non - commercial organization. Please do not ask for the name).

Building a Porch Roof

Q. Is there any publication that gives instructions on building a porch roof, gable or otherwise?

A. The Manuel Arts Press, Peoria, Ill., and Theo Audel and Company, 49 West 23rd St., New York, publish many books on construction work of various kinds. I suggest that you write to these houses for their catalogues. But if you have had no experience it would be better to engage a carpenter, if possible.

Mr. Whitman offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning home repair work. If you would like his leaflet, W-1, on Marred Furniture Finish, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Roger C. Whitman, care of The Marion Star, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York, 19, N. Y.

Q: Our bathtub has a dark brown streak down each side of the faucet. How can this be removed?

A: Rub with a scratchless scouring powder moistened with ammonia or kerosene.

Repairing Brick Sidewalk

Q.: Some of the bricks in the walk in front of my house have been torn up, leaving a space about 4 feet square, and next to the curb. Could you tell me how to relay these bricks? I want to do the job myself.

A.: The bricks should be laid in a cement foundation; without this precaution the bricks will heave in winter with freezing and thawing. Over a bed of well-tamped cinders (not ashes) 6 to 8 inches thick, depending on soil drainage, lay 3 inches of lean concrete, mixed 1 part of portland cement and 8 parts of clean building sand, adding only enough water to make a stiff mixture. Lay the brick on a half-inch setting bed of cement mortar, composed of 1 part portland cement and 3 parts of clean, coarse sand, adding water to make a fairly stiff mixture. The brick should be hard-burned, having a low percentage of absorption. A soft, porous brick will chip and scale after a spell of wet and freezing weather. Fill joints between the bricks with the same mortar.

Plaster Loose Next to Bathtub

Q. My bathroom walls are covered with a wall linoleum. Around the top of the tub where this material meets the tub, there is separation and the plaster behind seems to be loosened, probably from water being splashed on it. My attempts to stick the linoleum back with a linoleum cement did not succeed. What do you suggest?

A. My preference would be to have the linoleum cut back above the line of splashing, the damaged plaster replaced, and this part of the wall finished in tile. A metal moulding set into a calking compound around the top of the tub will seal the joint between tub and wall. Professional work would be best.

Achieving spaciousness in the small house, this combination of dining room and living room in L formation provides a maximum of light. Designed by Rudolph A. Mattern and Associates, 90-04 161st street, Jamaica 2, New York, as their Stanwood model, this plan can grow with a family. The house covers 935 square feet and contains 21,375 cubic feet, which may be used for local cost estimates. The second floor can be left unfinished for a future improvement. A center hall offers access to all first floor rooms. A fieldstone front, brick sides and wide clapboards for the rest of the exterior, with a slate or asphalt shingle roof are among suggestions of the architects.

College's $10 Bargain Turns White Elephant

By The United Press

WEST CHESTER, Pa. — West Chester State Teachers college got a $10 bargain, but doesn't know what to do with it.

The bargain is a 2,400-pound aircraft engine purchased from the War Assets Administration. Valued at $10,000, it was sold to the college for $10 for educational purposes.

College authorities planned to put it on display in a campus museum, but the engine is too bulky and heavy for doorways and elevators. So it's still resting on the top steps of the school's Anderson Hall as officials scratch their heads for a solution.

PERSHING OBSERVES HIS 87TH BIRTHDAY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—General of the Armies John J. Pershing observed his 87th birthday quietly today at the Army's Walter Reed General hospital where he has been living for several years.

The commander of American Expeditionary Forces in the First World War, who was known to his doughboys as "Blackjack," engaged in no special activities in connection with the observance.

Brig. Gen. George C. Beach, commanding general of the Army medical center and Walter Reed, said the general's condition "is all right and he is spending a quiet morning."

President Truman who was an artillery officer under Pershing's command in World War I, sent this message from the Battleship Missouri on which he is returning from Rio de Janeiro:

"In the name of a grateful people I send affectionate birthday greetings to a gallant and intrepid defender of American rights. Time, which has vindicated your vision and judgment, has increased the debt which the nation owes you."

The hospital said hundreds of congratulatory messages were received by the general who listened to a birthday serenade by the U. S. army band in mid-morning. The band, which was activated under Pershing's direction in 1920, played on the lawn under windows of his room at the hospital.

3 KILLED IN SUDDEN STORM IN LOUISVILLE

Debris Clutters Streets; Damage Estimates Run High.

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 13—Three men were killed and several others injured, one critically, in a sudden storm which pelted the heart of this city late yesterday afternoon.

Merchants today were trying to assess the damage which early estimates said would run into many thousands of dollars, while city employes struggled to free downtown streets of bricks, glass, wires and trees.

Joseph Steinmetz, 21-year-old bookkeeper, was killed instantly when a tree was blown upon the cab of a truck he was driving.

Russell Cormack, 40, Nashville, Tenn., and John Lee Gentry, 27, Jeffersontown, Ky., were injured fatally when they were caught under a pile of concrete blocks as a building under construction collapsed from the impact of wind, estimated by Meteorologist E. E. Unger at 60 miles an hour.

Kenton Pastor Heads Hardin Co. Clergymen

Special to The Star

KENTON — Rev. Allen H. Bowe, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Kenton, was re-elected president of the Hardin County Ministerial Association to serve the current year to fill the office of Rev. William L. Nofcier who recently moved from his Kenton pastorate of the Epworth Methodist church.

Rev. W. L. Brown of the First Baptist church here, was elected vice president, and Hunter Beckelhymer of the Kenton Church of Christ, is secretary-treasurer.

Plans were discussed for setting aside a Sunday for a special offering to be taken in all churches to be donated to the Hardin Memorial Hospital Fund.

An ambitious project was decided upon, that of taking a religious census of Hardin county by all Protestant churches. This will be a joint effort of the churches, to contact those residents who do not have any church affiliation, requesting each to denote his church preference.

The Hardin county association went on record endorsing the Stratton bill now in congressional committee. The bill provides for the admission of 100,000 displaced persons of Europe annually into this country for the next four years.

Two Bands Add Football Color

Both the Harding High school band and the band from Fostoria school added color to the Harding-Fostoria football game here last night with their intricate performance during the halftime intermission.

Director of the Fostoria unit, Richard Downs, is a native of Martel, and when in high school, he played with the Caledonia-Martel high school band. Later, he taught for a time at the La-Rue High school, and before going to Fostoria, was teaching at Gallipolis.

Just last week, the Veterans of Foreign Wars band of Fostoria, which Mr. Downs also directs, took top national honors at the national convention in Cleveland.

Members of the visiting band, in their soft blue uniforms trimmed in red, started off their show by spelling "HELLO" to the fans, which they followed up with an "F" for their own school.

A highlight of their show which captured the attention of the audience was the forming of a bubble pipe from which, with the stadium lights out, could be seen varicolored bubbles coming forth. To do this, the band members used balloons lighted by flashlights which they moved in the air. During this, they played "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles."

The Harding band, in their red and black uniforms and under the direction of Homer Huffman, began their show by coming onto the field from both ends and forming an "F" in salute to the visitors. Then a horseshoe formation was made as a symbol designed to bring the footballers good luck during the year. The selection for the formation was "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." To top off the show, the band formed a large "H" and played the Harding school songs.

For the flag raising ceremony preceding the game, the Harding band played "The National Anthem."

PRICES

which started Thursday, continued yesterday, with Minneapolis cash wheat dropping 8¼ cents a bushel and flour prices declining 20 to 30 cents a hundred pounds. Cash corn at Chicago dropped 4 to 6 cents a bushel and 4 to 5 cents at Omaha.

Senator Ives (R-NY) said in Washington that unless "wild speculation in grains" and other foods is curbed congress "will be forced to take some action."

Ives told a reporter that he fears continued increases in all prices and living costs "might cause the bottom to drop out as it did in 1929 and 1920-21."

"We do not have all the features of a general depression as yet," the senator said, adding that he hopes business, the public and the government can find a solution to the price problem.

U. S. Government Blamed for Food Price Increases

By The United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 — Two authoritative sources today charged that the United States government's market tactics have been a major factor in the recent sharp advance in food prices.

A. W. Zelomek, president of the international statistical bureau, and the magazine Business Week, in its current issue, indicated that the government has been aiding and abetting the speculators by bidding up grain prices and talking up other prices through predictions of government bureaus.

Business Week, in its current issue, holds that "prices would quickly reverse themselves if the government stopped buying grain." Zelomek, taking a similar stand, believes after a two-month trip abroad to study conditions that Europe is not in immediate need of our grain and that purchases could be stopped until the markets declined.

"The speculator in some markets has made tremendous profits by betting that the Marshall plan will cause a further round of exaggerated price inflation," Zelomek said in an interview.

Zelomek pointed out that the "Marshal plan" is not even yet a plan and that congress will do nothing about it for some months yet. It has no connection with the last advance in food prices, he said.

That rise, Zelomek, who spent May and June in Europe studying conditions, has been caused chiefly by two factors:

▶A reduction of the corn crop, whic his basic to a great many foods, by poor weather. This has been an act of God, about which nothing can be done.

▶The lack of intelligence in the way the government has handled large exports of food, particularly grains, to Europe. This is an act of man, about which something could be done.

By The Associated Press

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 13—Three members of the Piccard family took a ride today—in a balloon filled with 35,000 feet of illuminating gas.

In the balloon were Mrs. Jeannette Piccard, 60-year old wife of the famed stratosphere explorer; her son, Donald, 21, and his 18-year old wife, Jean.

Donald said he would soar around a bit in the higher air of eastern Pennsylvania then descend to let his mother out. Up he'd go again, coming down a second time to let his wife out. Finally he said he'd solo at 10,000 feet before bringing the balloon down.

His father, Dr. Jean Piccard, watched the balloon soar off.

On the beautiful Isle of Somewhere,

HARDING BOWS TO FOSTORIA, 12-0, IN FOOTBALL OPENER

Fumbles, Penalties in Visitor's Territory Cost Locals Heavily

By GEORGE ROEST

Harding lost its opening game to Fostoria, 12-0, at Harding stadium last night.

Several advances into Fostoria territory were cut short by fumbles and one was hindered by a holding penalty in the third quarter.

Fostoria, running from a single wing, usually was able to get its backs through to the Harding secondary.

Scores came in the first and last quarters, the first by right half Bob Bomer climaxing a 73-yard drive. Carlos Jackson, unable to find a pass receiver skirted left end for 24 yards and the second score.

4,000 See Game

Both teams were successful enough in their offensive play to excite the estimated 4,000 persons who attended. Fostoria gained 300 yards rushing and Harding gained 220.

Neither team concentrated heavily on passing, each throwing six and completing three, Harding for 54 yards and Fostoria for 29.

Bomer set up the first score with an off tackle left for 31 yards to the Harding 38. Six ground plays carried the ball to the 15 and Jackson passed to Pastorius who got to the one. Woodly's plunge was nullified by an offside penalty and Bomer spun through center for the marker.

The second quarter was an in-and-out affair. After Fostoria had penetrated to the Prexy nine they were forced back, Marion taking over on the 12. Smith then reeled off a 58-yard run to the opponents' 32 before being brought down by Jackson who had tailed him after he passed the secondary. Hill fumbled on the next play and Woodly recovered.

Third All Harding

The third quarter was all Harding's. They advanced from their own 17 to the Fostoria 20, but holding was called on the 34 putting it back on the 49. Harding lost the ball on the 36, being unable to overcome the handicap and pick up a first.

In the fourth quarter Harding was forced back to their seven when Gherman and Huddle let a punt roll and had to kick out, Fostoria putting their final payoff drive in motion on the Harding 40. Like the first score, a bad break was thrown Fostoria's way on the play just prior to the score. They lost 10 yards on a bad pass from center making it second and 20 for a first down. Jackson attempted a pass but sensing no obstacles along the east sideline, dashed into the south end zone.

Howison Is Not Downhearted

Although losing, Coach Pete Howison felt that his boys made a good showing and still stuck to his prediction that the team would win some games this season.

Tom Bender, Fostoria coach, well pleased with the showing of his heavy and fast team, tossed a bouquet at the Prexies in praising the team's tackling. He also was of the opinion that the locals would be able to shake their set backs Gherman and Smith loose for some scores this season.

Harding plays Columbus South here next Friday.

Both the Harding and Fostoria bands participated in putting on an impressive half time show. Harding band played for the flag raising before the game.

St. Mary Whips Delaware Willis, 13-0, in Grid Debut

Irish Employ Ground Offensive In Bruising Game with Panthers

Making good their threat to put the Delaware Willis Panthers through the hoops, the St. Mary Irish brought home a 13-0 victory last night, their first over the Panthers.

Switching from the popular T to a single wing formation early in the game, the Irish made both tallies from the ground in what Coach Gene Fetter called one of the roughest games he had seen.

A wet field held the Fetterme to three pass attempts, two of them good.

Panthers Take To Air

The Pantners, on the defe after Stuber scored late in the first quarter, gambled on s passes, only one of which good. Two of them were inter cepted.

With four minutes to go in the first quarter, the Irish took possession of the ball on the Dela ware 44, and in seven plays marched to the seven-yard line Irish quarterback Bob Stuber went wide around left end for the initial touchdown. Worley's try for extra point was no good.

No scoring threats develope in the second quarter, which was even all the way.

Line Stops Willis

The Irish line stopped a W scoring threat in the third quarter, holding on their own 14 after the Panthers had mowed all the way from their own 2

Speedy Panther halfback Ray Broadnax ran a kickoff from his 22 to the 47, and on the next play slashed down to the Irish 43. Two more running plays brought the Panthers to the St. Mary 22 and an Ogden to Jones pass connected for 8 more yards, where the Irish stopped them.

A fumble on the Delawa e four yard line ruined a St. Mary threat in the fourth quarter, but the Irish came right back to make the second score.

Returning a Panther punt to the Delaware 40, the Irish advanced to the 32, dropped back to the 47 on a 15 yard penalty, and used three plays to get back to the 40.

Needing 18 yards to make a first down, on the fourth down, with 18 yards to go for a first a Stuber to Schuler pass was good for 28 yards and moved St Mary to the 12. Interference was called on another Stuber-Schuler attempt, moving the ball to the Delaware 4 and drawing screams from the crowd.

Schuler went through the middle for the touchdown, and Worley's conversion was good.

The Irish play host to Lima St. Rose next Thursday night.

PROSPECT BOWS TO CLARIDON IN OPENER

Claridon, capitalizing on a number of breaks, handed Prospect a 16-4 defeat at Prospect last night in six-man football. It was the first start of the season for each school.

Prospect drew blood in the first quarter, Landon scoring from 20 yards out. Waxler converted. Two safeties in the second quarter made the score 8-4, Prospect leading.

In the third period Pickett fell on a ball that had been centered wildly for the first Claridon touchdown, Claridon stepping to a 10-8 lead. Prospect went ahead, in the same canto, on a 10 yard pass from Knopp to Huges for a touchdown.

Claridon took possession on the Prospect 25 after Prospect had elected to pass instead of kick on fourth down and the pass fell short. Chapman scored on an end run with 30 seconds left.

Richwood, Groveport Play to Scoreless Tie

Special to The Star

RICHWOOD, Sept. 12 — Richwood and Groveport football teams battled to a scoreless tie here last night in the season opener. Neither team got past the 20-yard stripes as their T formations failed to click on the damp field.

Richwood travels to Forest next Friday.

Muncie Floors Bruins, 8-3; Roses Booked Here Tonight

By DON C. BURTON

The Muncie Packers took the rubber game of the present series from the Cubs at Lincoln park last night, 8-3. A crowd of only about 500 saw the game as football became the big attraction in Marion.

The Muncie win cut the Cubs second place lead to five and one-half games over the Packers with 11 games left to play before the season is over a week from tomorrow.

Jitts Lawrence went all the way for Marion although he was tagged for 11 hits. Eddie Post, Muncie ace southpaw, won his eighteenth game of the year despite five errors by his teammates, three by second baseman Howie Locke.

Two of the 11 hits by Muncie were home runs, one each by Bob Montag and Al Spaziano. The four-baser by Montag which came with two aboard in the fifth was his twelfth of the season and tied him with Bob Shuford for the league leadership in circuit clouts.

John Smith talked a run for Marion that gave the scorer a headache trying to figure out how to score the play.

With Roy Hollingshead on third and John Smith on first following a hit and an error by Locke on Smith's grounder, Mel Nelson tapped to the pitcher. The tap caught Holly off third and in the run down Smith came around to third and as Al Spaziano, Muncie catcher, chased Roy back to third and tagged him out Smith waited near third and when Hollingshead was tagged out Smith touched third and broke for home and there was no one there to cover the plate and Smith scored. The play went into the records a sa stolen base for Smith.

Tonight the Richmond Roses will play the Cubs a single game and wind up the season's series with the Cubs with a twin bill tomorrow. Fran kSmith, who hurled a no-hit game here against Lima Aug. 31, will hurl for the Cubs.

SET UNION CO. RECORDS

By The Associated Press

Dr. Parshall drove to victories in all his eight heats of the opening race day Wednesday and Miller topped it by one yesterday with nine.

Cardinal Obituaries Put Aside As Birds Beat Dodgers, 8-7, To Prolong Decision

By The Associated Press

The Cardinal obituaries were once again shoved aside today as the still breathing St. Louis club showed the baseball world that they do not intend to relinquish their crown without a last ditch struggle.

The Redbirds' nerve-tangling 8-7 "saver" victory over the Dodgers last night rescued them from practical elimination.

So once again the Cards are four and a half games in back of front running Brooklyn, but this time they have only 17 games left to play while the Dodgers have 14.

Trailing in 9th

Yesterday not many of the 31,957 wild-eyed onlookers that packed Sportsman's park in St. Louis would have given a plugged nickel for the Cards' chances as they trugged in from the field for their turn at bat in the last of the ninth.

They went to work on Hank Behrman, fifth Dodger hurler, in earnest, driving him off the mound and gave the coup de grace to Ralph Branca, Brooklyn ace, a two-run double by Enos Slaughter.

The win squared the vital three-game series at one win apiece and put the issue directly up to little Vic Lombardi, Dodger left-hander and Murry Dickson, St. Louis righthander, who oppose each other in this afternoon's rubber game.

The New York Yankees, apparently just playing out their string, were beaten again for their eighth loss in the last 13 starts, when they bowed to the Detroit Tigers, 7-2, at the Yankee stadium. Despite their poor record, any combination of three Yank victories or three Detroit defeats will clinch the American league flag for the Bombers. The same denomination holds true for the Boston Red Sox who fell to third place, a half game behind the Tigers when they were beaten by the fourth place Cleveland Indians, 11-6.

Kiner Homers Twice

Ralph Kiner set one record and tied three when he belted two homers to lead the Pirates to a 4-3 victory over the Boston Braves in Pittsburgh. The round trippers were his 48th and 49th to give him undisputed possession of the home run leadership in the majors. Johnny Mize of the New York Giants, who was idle, has 47.

The Chicago Cubs swept a doubleheader from the Philadelphia Phils, 4-3 and 7-5, to mire the Phils deeper into the National league cellar.

Jack Kramer held the Washington Senators to nine hits as the St. Louis Browns combed three Nat hurlers for 15 to win, 9-3.

Catcher Mike Guerra's wild throw in the 10th inning hit pinch hitter Ralph Hodgin in the back and enabled Luke Appling to score from third with the run that gave the Chicago White Sox a 5-4 victory over the Athletics in Philadelphia.

Pictures on Envelopes Prove Enough Address

By The United Press

DUNCAN, Okla.—Local postmaster Tom Gray is in the same category with President Truman, General MacArthur and Bing Crosby—postally speaking.

Gray has received a letter from Millport, Ala., with only his picture pasted on the envelope for an address. The photo had been clipped from a postal employes' magazine.

The letter was from Dewey D. Prater, Alabama postmaster, who has used the unique addressing method to write the President, military leaders and Hollywood stars.

Gray said he would like to know how the letter reached him. But he added he would not mark it "insufficient address."

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

As I racked what Dicky sometimes calls my "alleged brain" for an answer which would satisfy Mary, I called all the old similes into action.

The "devil and the deep blue sea"; "Scylla and Charybdis"; "The hammer and the anvil"; I felt that I was indeed caught between each of them.

I knew well the fate of anyone who gives advice, either asked or unasked, upon a marital problem. Even though I was sure Mary wished an answer adverse to Noel's apparent wish that she abandon her stage career forever for motherhood, I was not so sure that, if I gave it, I would not find myself in the position of the bystander who came to the rescue of a wife being beaten by her husband, only to find himself belabored by the woman.

So I found myself speaking warily, although every instinct within me urged hot words of condemnation for Noel. The sublime insolence of him, I raged inwardly, to assume that Mary would give up forever her brilliant career, without even asking her opinion in the matter!

"I don't think Noel has had time to think along a straight line yet, darling," I said slowly, resolving, as I spoke, that before the temperamental young husband should see his wife again, I would make an opportunity to see him and try to steer him into a more reasonable line of thought.

Incredulous Eyebrows

"Maybe not," Mary said, with an incredulous uplift of her eyebrows. "But he was pretty emphatic about the line he was taking when he was talking this morning. However, that is beside the point just now. What I want is your opinion of what he said. Is he justified in asking that of me?"

"Your commonsense ought to answer that question, Mary," I said, glad that she had put her question in just that form. "No one human being can decide another's action. He certainly is not justified in assuming what you will do before you come to a decision yourself on the matter."

"You're beating the horned gentleman around the barberry bush," she said impatiently, "and I hope you get full of thorns in the process! What I want to know is this: Do you think he's right in thinking I ought to give up the theater forever, if I have a child. And please notice, loidy, that I didn't say my 'careeah'!"

On the Wary Side

Her flippancy only emphasized, I knew, the frenzied insistence that was hers, but I still kept on the wary side.

"How can I answer that, Mary?" I asked. "You are the only person in the world who can make that decision. It would be the height of presumption for me to venture an opinion upon a question so strictly belonging to you alone."

"Sometimes I could wring your graceful neck with the greatest pleasure," she declared, "although I know, of course, that you're making all the correct answers. But let's put it this way."

She paused, leaned forward in her chair, put the tips of her fingers together and looked steadily at me.

"If you were an actress, in my place, and wanted a child, would you think yourself compelled to vow you never would act a role again?"

I returned her steady gaze.

"Do you want my answer to convince yourself of the rightness of some decision still in doubt, or to bolster one already made?" I asked.

She threw out her hands with an impatient gesture.

"You ought to be State's Attorney!" she cried petulantly. "Would you cross-examine the witnesses! There wouldn't be a dry stitch left on 'em when you got through!"

"You're dodging the question," I told her relentlessly.

"And you're dodging mine!" she retorted. "What difference does it make to you how near to—or far away from—a decision I am?"

No Difference

"No real difference," I admitted, seeing that I could postpone my answer no longer, in simple justice to her. "And so I'll tell you that were I in your place, I would examine my soul very carefully to see if my child's welfare would suffer if I kept on acting. I would know that I could command the best possible professional physical care and tutoring of my child. I also would consider the prestige and the pride of achievement in me that my child would lose if I did give up my career, and I'm not saying the word derisively. And, most of all, I should consider how much of myself I could give to a small son or a daughter."
